DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restriction

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-11 and 58 drawn to a method for scoring peptide matches, using probabilities, where both the first peptide and second peptide can be experimental classified in class 702, subclass 19.
- II. Claims 12-24, drawn to a method for scoring peptide matches using the null hypothesis where the second peptide is not experimental but theoretical, classified in class 703, subclass 11.

If Group I is elected the below listed election from Species A is required.

- III. Claims 25-57 are drawn to a storage medium and system having a code for causing a processor to score peptide matches, drawn to a kit, classified in class 712, subclass 220.

The inventions are independent or distinct, each from the other because:

Groups I and II are distinct because Group I is a method for scoring peptide matches comprising calculating a first probability and second probability that the first peptide matches the second peptide and calculating a second probability that the first peptide does not match the second peptide, based on the stochastic model generated. Scoring a match between the first peptide and the second peptide based at least in part on a ratio between the first probability and the second probability. This method may be applied to peptides that are experimental as described in the claim. Group II is also a method for scoring peptide matches but involves defining an extended match E based on the information associated with the experimental peptide and the candidate peptide. Scoring the extended match E based on a likelihood ratio L , using the null hypothesis. This theoretical method is applied to peptides where the candidate peptide is not experimental but comes from a peptide database as described in claim 15. Groups I and II are distinct and would be an undue search burden because as Group I pertains to experimental methods and Group II requires theoretical analysis.

Group I and II are distinct from Group III because Group I and II are a method while Group III is a storage medium and a system. Inventions of Groups I and II and Group III are related as process and apparatuses for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another and materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the storage medium and system for scoring can be used to practice another materially different process.

Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C.103(a) of the other invention.

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
